Have you joined the HCCA compliance community? While you likely have social media apps on your smartphones and tablets to keep in touch with compliance colleagues via Twitter, Facebook, or Pinterest, you may be missing the best kept secret in compliance success—HCCAnet.

Beckley

Log in to your HCCA account and point your browser to <http://bit.ly/295DLVY>. The welcome banner will greet you with an opportunity to build community and connect with your colleagues. You are entering a place for “knowledge exchange, content curation, idea incubation and professional networking.” You will be prompted to join the discussion where you can ask or answer questions with your peers. You’ll be advised that “dynamic discussion groups provide the tools you need to communicate with leaders and partners in your field.” And probably one of the best features at the HCCAnet is the opportunity to browse the resource library, where you can search and find content and media when you need it and “build a knowledge base of industry best practices, sample documents, spreadsheets, pictures, videos and more.”

Discussion groups are “communities” in the HCCAnet parlance. While at the net, you can browse the communities as well as the discussions in each community. Feel free to join the communities of interest to you and set your notification preferences to get emails on new discussions as they happen, or subscribe to digests that summarize the discussion topics that are hyperlinked for ease of access.

Recent documents uploaded to the library for sharing include a BA List Template, a policy on 60-Day Report & Return Overpayments (a policy everyone needs), and the Basic Field Guide to Healthcare Compliance: A Workbook for Compliance Professionals. These are all available for download, thanks to net community members sharing. (Do you have a document to share?)

...probably one of the best features at the HCCAnet is the opportunity to browse the resource library.

While at the net, you’ll have an opportunity to earn points and badges with your contributions. Get to meet the leaderboard of the top four compliance professionals at the net: Frank from Phoenix, Marie from Honolulu, James from Tupelo, and Sanaa from Las Vegas.

BTW—Are you anticipating going to the Compliance Institute in 2017? The discussion group has already started! There are 11 members and five discussions (as of this writing), with warnings to fellow CI attendees to secure reservations for the National Harbor before the room block fills up.

Contributions are welcome. Post a question, provide an answer, and get to know other netters. Do you have a document to share? The net is awaiting your upload. ☺
